

Recruitment for Review Body Farm Resilience Mentorship (FaRM) Program

In the coming months, the Farm Resilience Mentorship (FaRM) Program will launch a request for proposals (RFP) for collaborative Field Trials to support agricultural professionals, farmers, and ranchers to build knowledge in Beneficial Management Practices (BMPs), overcome regional barriers to BMP implementation, and troubleshoot BMP adoption through practical, hands-on experience.

Field trials will be in the BMP areas of cover cropping, improved nitrogen (N) management, and rotational grazing. We are looking to assemble a list of experts from across the country to review applications. It is expected that this will take 5-10 hours in July, and your time would be compensated. You will be responsible for reviewing electronic applications and providing regional advice and expertise on the feasibility of the project, followed by a FaRM-led meeting with other members of the review body.

Do you have expertise in cover cropping, improved N management, and rotational grazing, and would you be willing to assist in application review? If so, please submit your name, areas of expertise, and where you are located in the following link:

*If, when the RFP launches, you decide to put in an application, please let us know, and we will remove you from the Review Body.
